Hello 6 Tolkien!

How was your Easter? It was important for everyone to switch off for a little bit. I have looked over the pictures from the last photo challenge and they were great! Some interesting phone designs were given: if only they were real I would certainly have a few of them!

We are now at the start of the summer term and it is important to keep the work going as there are many more weeks to go at home. Try your best to follow the timetable that we have given you. If you spend too much time watching TV or playing games then the knowledge that you have will slowly escape your brains – when you come back to school it will be harder to catch up!

Now it's time for a bit of humour: I will give you two jokes!

What did one maths book say to the other?

"I've got so many problems."

What's Thanos' favourite app to talk to friends?

Snapchat.

(You may only understand this one if you are into your superheroes!)

Stay safe, positive and remember to keep up with your work!

Until next week,

Mr Ali.
